

James McGuire is Regional Counsel for U.S. EPA in Region 6, covering Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, and 66 federally recognized tribes. James is an experienced government executive with a focus on the intersection of law, policy, and the environment. Prior to his federal service, James served as the environmental director at the City of Dallas and as general counsel to Dallas Water Utilities, serving 2.4 million Texans. He also practiced environmental law at a large law firm. James serves on the Advisory Committee for The University of Texas' Energy and Earth Resources Graduate Program, and also on the Executive Committee of the Environment and Natural Resources Law Section of the State Bar of Texas. James received a B.A. in English and B.S. in Earth & Ocean Sciences with highest honors from Duke University; an M.S. in Geological Sciences from The University of Texas at Austin; and J.D. from Emory University School of Law.